

Save the ER for emergencies. And you could save time and money.

Walk-in centers can be a smart choice.

Emergency room (ER) wait times are at an all-time high, and ER visits could cost more than you think.¹ If it's not a true emergency, you can get quality care — and often be seen faster — at a walk-in center. Your costs are usually lower at these clinics, too.

Get care sooner.

The average wait time in a hospital emergency room is three hours — and many times care could have been handled in a walk-in center.² Wait times are usually much shorter at walk-in clinics. And they're often less crowded, more comfortable places.

Lower costs.

You'll pay a specialist copay at a walk-in center. To find your specific costs and coverage, call the number on the back of your member ID card.

Get the care you need.

Walk-in centers have the same types of nurses, doctor's assistants and doctors you'd see in an emergency room or at your doctor's office.

Make the smart choice when you need care quickly, but your life isn't in danger.

Most walk-in centers can treat problems like minor cuts and burns, sprains and strains, sports injuries, sore throats, earaches and flu. Some places can give X-rays or run other tests on site, so they can let you know quickly if you need more specialized care.

You don't need an appointment or referral.

Your Anthem network includes many local walk-in centers. You can check the back of this sheet, call the number on the back of your member ID card or check the Provider Finder at anthem.com to find one close to you. Then just walk right in when you need urgent or after-hours care.

Let a nurse help you decide.

Not sure if you need urgent or emergency care? Call the 24/7 NurseLine at 800-607-3262 — anytime, day or night. Talk about your symptoms with a registered nurse who can help you decide which type of care makes the most sense.

Know the emergency rule of thumb.

Call 911 or go to the nearest emergency room if you think delaying care could put your health at serious risk.
